To our most valued customers:

In the last few months, I have personally been involved in learning about the new irrigation controllers that have come out because of the drought from the last few years.

The Hunter Pro-C Series has a new add-on called "Solar Sync" that automatically adjusts itself to the temperature, rainfall, wind, and evaporation rates. This unit can be added on to an existing Hunter clock for $159 plus labor.

The Rain Bird system is very much hands off. Once you program your system type such as heads, type of soil, shade, slope, zip code, etc... it takes care of what time to run, how long, days etc... You only tell it when you don't want it to run (i.e.: Day Restrictions & Time Restraints). It even has its own weather station included! These units start at $400 plus the cost of zones.

Both of these units claim to save 30 to 50 percent in water use. With the cost of water increasing in the area, spending a few couple hundred dollars for a controller that will automatically adjust itself when we are too busy spending time with our families and other interests may well be worth the money.

Please check out our website at www.reitzelbrothers.net and simply click the Smart Irrigation Technology button on the home page. These are great products, and I would like to meet with you to upgrade your system for the future. Lots of these new products are due to a new irrigation law that took affect in July of 2009 (www.nciclb.org), and we, as licensed irrigation contractors, must improve our practices of design, installation, and saving our most precious resource, water. Thank you and I look forward to your call.

Sincerely,

Chris Reitzel
